Advice for Children

- Make sure your employer gets a work permit for you from your Children's Services office.
- Your employer should make sure you are properly trained. If you are unsure of what you are doing ask for help.
- Find out what the safety rules are at work.
- Don't be afraid to say NO if a job is dangerous – you should not be asked to do it.
- Don't be tempted to do extra hours – you may get overtired and have an accident and your employer could be breaking the law.
- Tell your parents where you are working and what you are doing.
- Make sure your employer has an emergency contact number in case you have an accident at work.
- Tell your parents and employer if anyone makes you feel uncomfortable or anxious by what they say or do.

Advice for Parents

- Make sure your child is registered with the local authority and has a work permit for his/her current employment.
- Find out if your child's employer has employer's liability insurance.
- Find out from your child's employer how they intend to remove or reduce any risks the child may face at work. They are required by law to let you know.
- Encourage your child to tell you if he/she has any problems at work, maybe they are being asked to do something that is unsafe.
- Always be aware of when and where your child is working and give him/her emergency contact details in case of accident.
- Speak to your child's employer if you are unhappy or anxious about any aspect of the work he/she is doing.

- During the year children must have at least two consecutive weeks without employment during a school holiday.
- A risk assessment must be carried out by the employer on any work that the child will undertake.
