> I would like to raise my objection to the inclusion of the land by Watercress Farm Lymm owned by [REDACTED] as possible land for housing. Thirlmere Drive is a quiet cul de sac that would be massively affected in a detrimental fashion should building rights be granted. The road is quite narrow with no space to safely park cars on the road and have a car drive through let alone the numerous heavy machines needed to erect houses. When Watercress farm was being renovated the workforce, their vans and machines blocked the road, caused excess mess and damaged the drive of one resident. The police were called as there was so much obstruction to people's homes. This was for one property! The disruption, damage and dirt from a housing development of 10-15 houses would cause untold misery to residents and prevent the many children on the estate playing outside their own homes. The Dairyfarm estate as a whole is blighted already by lack of parking with multiple vehicles double parking and obstructing access, constant traffic from building machinery and vehicles would only add to this with potentially dangerous outcomes to the home owners and their families. I appreciate that WBC has to fulfil its duties and provide housing but the proposed Thirlmere drive development is the wrong land and personally I think any further development of Lymm is wrong. Lymm has no Post Office or Bank, the library is under threat. Every school is full or close to capacity, the doctors and dentists are at breaking point, as a village we can take very little more before we crack. Having studied the proposed areas there are far more suitable and less dangerous sites than Thirlmere Drive and better served communities than Lymm that are better placed to absorb a significant increase in housing.
