I am writing in objection to the plans mentioned above. I have lived in Warrington for nearly [REDACTED] years and am currently living in Moore. These plans will have a serious negative impact to this and the surrounding area.

The plans will eat up a majority of the green belt area and this just can't be right. This is an area where people come to escape from town/city life on evenings and weekends to enjoy quiet family time, to take this away from people is disgraceful. There will soon be no green space left to enjoy. This was one of the reasons I chose to live in Warrington, take this away and the area will become a far far less appealing place to live. Putting a few parks in the middle of a built up area just isn't good enough and is no way a replacement for what will be lost. If new houses need to be built surely there are areas to build on which won't have such a huge impact. This just seems like you are taking the easy way out without considering the devastation that will be caused. Once these areas are lost, they are lost forever!

One major problem with Warrington already is traffic, it is a huge problem in people's life's as Warrington seems to have the worst road network known to man. I can't go a day without listening to people complaining about traffic in the area. To add the amount of houses you are considering would make Warrington one of the worst places in the north west to live, we just can't cope with anymore. We can't just 'nip' into town at weekends, it requires at least half a day just to drive 3 miles on a Saturday afternoon. Most of us already spend far too long sat in our cars in traffic wasting our lives away. I have to add 2 hours on my work day just to miss the traffic.

If this was to go ahead where do you think the new residents would work? It almost certainly won't be in Warrington, it is likely they will commute to our neighbouring cities causing more mayhem on the surrounding motorway routes which are already struggling to cope as it is.

The nature reserve in Moore is home to lots of wildlife including rare breeds such as bats and bitterns. Many people come to enjoy this area from all over town. To even consider building in this area is criminal. It is heartbreaking to think people would be capable of destroying such a beautiful and important area.

I have yet to meet anybody from anywhere in Warrington that feels these plans are a good idea. Nobody wants it and there seems no reasonable reason why it should go ahead. Developments are supposed to improve the area and surroundings for current and new residents, all this will do is make Warrington a very unattractive place to live, it will completely destroy anything good and appealing about the area.

The fact that these plans are even being considered is outrageous, you are either too blind to see the huge negative impact or just don't care.
